L3Harris

For more than 45 years, L3Harris (L3 MAPPS Inc.) has worked with leading utilities, plant designers and research organizations to create superior training simulator and engineering-assist simulators and has established itself as the world's pre-eminent manufacturer of power plant simulators for PHWR, PWR, BWR and gas-cooled reactors. L3Harris has vast experience in supporting New Build projects with its simulation solutions—resulting in significant error reduction in the plant designs.

L3Harris recently introduced disruptive display technology—Orchid® IX—bringing 3D visualizations of high-value nuclear assets to life – without head-mounted gear! Orchid® IX is also used for real-time monitoring, in which the user(s) can feel fully immersed in the remotely monitored area.

L3Harris' Power Systems and Simulation business got its start in the early 1970s developing its first full scope operator training simulator for Pickering A (PHWR). Today, L3Harris supplies simulation products and services to leading utilities worldwide for PHWRs, LWRs and GCRs.

SimGenics Simulation Systems

SimGenics offers software solutions to enhance the quality and efficiency of technical training, and to streamline day-to-day operations at industrial facilities. Our solutions leverage existing software assets and greatly increase the return on investment for those assets. By incorporating the latest simulation and media software technologies, our SimuPact software framework is unrivalled and features a user-friendly, next-generation interface for our clients to customize the software for their needs.

Products and Services:

Full Scope Training Simulators: We offer High Fidelity, Full Scope Training Simulators that are custom-built for all types of fossil/nuclear power plants and process plants. Our full-scope simulators support Simulated, Emulated and Virtual DCS/HMI integration with all major I&C vendors.

Reduced-Scope Training Simulators: The target market of these products is the same as for Full-Scope Training Simulators, the only difference being that it is stripped of most secondary elements and only focus on the primary processes and engineering principles involved. This results in a lower cost product with much of the advantages of the Full-Scope product.

Unit Process Simulators:

Unit processes are focused training modules that teach specific power plant principles, operating philosophies, and control fundamentals. In addition to being substantially lower priced than a full scope simulator, a unit process simulation emulated only processes and controls important to training. This enables the trainee to easily identify and isolate cause-and-effect phenomena.

3D PACT:

3D PACT is a revolutionary suite of real-time 3D Training and Production Support Tools. It is based on video gaming technology and adds the ability to create or use existing 3D CAD models of industrial facilities and integrate them with 3rd party software tools such as Plant Information Databases, ERP systems, or existing Training Simulators.

Off-the-Shelf Simulators:

SimGenics offers several off-the-shelf simulator packages to schools, colleges, universities, and technical training centers. These products target both students and highly experienced professionals at all levels of the industry. They run on a standard Windows XP/Vista/7/10 PC and features colorful, user-friendly HMI screens.
