

H.M. "HASH" HASHEMIAN is President and Chief Executive Officer of AMS; a nuclear engineering firm operating in the United States, Europe, and Asia. He has 45 years of experience in development and delivery of industry-leading instrumentation and control system testing and analysis equipment, training, and services.

Hash holds three doctorate degrees in engineering including a Ph.D. in nuclear engineering, a Doctor of Engineering degree in electrical engineering, and a Ph.D. in computer engineering. He has written three books published in English, Chinese, Japanese, Korean, and Russian. He is also the author or co-author of 21 U.S. patents and has written more than 400 papers and reports.

Dr. Hashemian is a Fellow of the American Nuclear Society (ANS), Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE), International Society of Automation (ISA), and an adjunct professor of nuclear engineering at the University of Tennessee.